

It just seems like yesterday when Gayle and Graham arrived here for a visit from Florida. Since they arrived they have done some sightseeing, spent time in Palm Springs, shopped in Cabazon, wandered around an RV show in Ontario and discovered the commotion in Quartzsite. Though they have been busy, they have also had time to swim in the pool and relax in the hot tub. Unfortunately(?) most of our meals have been had while we have been out at some of the great eateries in the area.

Today Rick joined them while Gayle and Graham went into Palm Springs and the three of them explored some more of the city before stopping at Trader Joe's for groceries. I think all in all they have enjoyed their visit with us and we have certainly enjoyed having them here. The week has flown by and already the Allen's are getting ready to go home.

Tonight we enjoyed our farewell meal at home (thanks to the groceries Rick picked up at Trader Joes) followed by a viewing of the movie "RV" with Robin Williams. Though Rick and I have seen it before, it is the first time for Gayle and Graham and it is a movie we all can relate to. It continues to be a funny movie no matter how often we see it and it is a great way to end a great visit!
